Yeovil College is proud to present its 2009 production, ‘Night and Day’, the story of a London variety and night club from the 1940s to the 1980s.

The story begins in 1980. Samuel Gray (Gary Brooks) is closing the Night and Day for the last time when its new owner, Lorraine (Becky Richardson), appears. Beginning with the club’s optimistic opening in 1948, Sam tells her of the loves and losses, rises and falls of one of London’s great traditions and how ‘Night and Day’ became the club that nobody expected - least of all Sam.

Written by Yeovil College lecturer Philip Grant, ‘Night and Day’ is a new production of an original story featuring music of the times, including The Beach Boys, Marilyn Monroe, Johnny Ray and Cole Porter.

A diverse combination of some of Yeovil College’s most talented and creative students are involved in the production, including a large cast of Performing Arts students using sets designed and built by a student technical crew.

Philip Grant, Programme Area Co-Ordinator, said “I’m really excited about this play, my first original production for Yeovil College. ‘Night and Day’ has something for everyone and will be a hit with old and young alike. The annual production is a fantastic showcase of the ability and skill nurtured at Yeovil College. The students have worked really hard on ‘Night and Day’ and I’m sure that it’ll show in the performances later this month.”

Tickets are £8 each (£7 for concessions). Please call Yeovil College on 01935 845312 for more information.
